SOLDIERS, BOUNTY LANDS.

That part of the Soldiers bounty lands lying in the Missouri and Illinois territories, being five millions of acres, are in a rapid state of preparation, and will soon be ready to be allotted among the soldiers.

Gen. Rector, the surveyor general following the instructions of the government, has employed more than eighty companies of surveyors, comprising upwards of four hundred men, and bound them in contracts to complete their surveys by the first day June next.

To make sure of five millions of acres fit for cultivation, upwards of eight millions are ordered to be surveyed. None will be offered to the soldiers which is not fit for cultivation, and the surveys now include large bodies superior to fertility to the richest lands of Kentucky or Illinois.

Two and a half millions of acres will lay in the Illinois territory, in the fork of Mississinni and Illinois rivers, between the latitude of 39 and 41 degrees north; in parallels corresponding with Washington city, Philadelphia and the middle parts of Pennsylvania. This tract is washed by the Mississippi on the west, and the Illinois on the south east, and has an easy communication with lake Michigan by Chicago, and may carry its commerce to New Orleans or to New York, when the canal of that state is finished. Slavery is not admitted into the Illinois territory.

The other two and a half millions, will lay in the Missouri territory, between latitudes 31 and 40 degrees north, and longitude 12 and 10 degrees west from the city of Washington. This tract is watered by the Mississippi, the Missouri, and its tributaries the Great Osage and the Gasgonade; Slavery is admitted into the Missouri territory.

These lands are the first of the western country for richness of soil, healthiness of climate, and navigable waters; advantages enhanced by a position near the centre of the great valley of Mississippi, where the union of the great rivers and the centre of territory combine to fix so many interests, commercial and political. The staples will be wheat, hemp and tobacco, lead, salt and fur.

Besides the bounty lands upwards of five millions of acres of other public lands will also be surveyed by the first of June next; making in all, in the territories of Missouri and Illinois, about fourteen millions of acres subject at that time to the disposition of the government. The drawing of lots for the soldiers' bounties, and the public sales may be expected to come on soon after.

The Indian title has been extinguished in the Missouri territory to about seventy thousand square miles; that is to say, to a tract of country about as large as the state of Virginia, and embracing all the latitudes of that state.

The line between the whites and Indians begins three hundred miles up the Missouri river, at the mouth of the Kanzus, in latitude 39 degrees 5 minutes north, and runs north over a rich country, one hundred miles, to the head of the little river Platte, then east over naked sterile ridges one hundred and fifty miles and a half, to the des Moines (river of the Monks) then down that river 18 miles to the Mississippi.

South of the Missouri the line begins at Prairie de Fin (fine praire) thirty miles below the Kanzus, and runs south 254 miles down that river to Arcansas; then down that river supposed 250 miles to the Mississippi.

The two and a half millions of acres intended for the soldiers in the Missouri territory, are surveyed within those boundaries.

[We have this information from Col. Benton, and give it as such, that those interested may rely upon it.]

Law Intelligence—At the last mayor's court, came on the case of Cynthia Van Cleef vs. Wm. G. Lawrence, for defamation of the plaintiff's character, in point of chastity. The evidence for the plaintiff was direct and full to the purpose of proving the defamatory words, and of the malice with which they were spoken. Nothing, whatever, appearing in extenuation of the defendant's guilt, in propagating a slander, of the grossest nature, respecting a young woman of irreproachable character, and unsullied, by the breath of suspicion, the jury, not withstanding the narrowness of his circumstansces (being a school-master at Brooklyn, with a wife and family dependent upon him) gave a verdict of five thousand dollars damages; which, however, being 1000 more than what was laid in the declaration, was reduced accordingly. Too much praise cannot be given to the jury for thus marking, in this exemplary manner, this cruel, unmanly and atrocious slander.—N. Y. Ev. Post.

Important Judicial decision.—At the late Superior Court of Law, of Johnston county, one John S. Tarr, was offered as witness and objected to, upon the ground of defect of religious principle. Witnesses were called who deposed that on divers occasions Tarr had declared that he did not believe there was either a heaven or a hell; nor any future rewards or punishment. It was contended on the other side that Tarr should be sworn to declare whether he believed in a God, and in a future state of rewards and punishments.

The Judge (C. J. Taylor) said that, on the one hand, it would be incongruous to permit a man to be sworn, when the very question was, whether he was qualified to swear; and on the other, that he agreed with those who held that a man shall not be compelled to declare opinions which go so disgrace, and degrade him: he could not therefore permit a man to be exposed to tuch a temptation to suppress the truth.

Tarr was rejected as utterly incompetent to give evidence, and as a person to whose oath the law gives no credit.

HORRID SUPERSTITION.

Extract of a letter from Calcutta, dated Sept. 1815.

About a fortnight ago a distressing accident well calculated to place the horrid superstitions of the natives in their true light, took place in the town of Burdwan. An aged Hindoo of the Kulwar, or spirit vending tribe, his widow, an old woman of 72, in compliance with the customs of her ancestors, and to prove her lasting attachment to the deceased, resolved on sacrifieing herself at his funeral pile. The faggots being heaped up, the preliminary ceremonies concluded, and the body of the deluded wretch being anointed with oil, she was led to the stake, and bound down by a strong cord. Fire was then placed under the pile, the lower part of which soon began to blaze. The flame had no sooner ascended to the body of the devotee, than she began to struggle, and succeeded in making her escape, in consequence of the rope by which she was secured having been consumed. Being now at liberty she rushed precipitately towards the police officers on duty there, piteously calling to them to save her from destructon. She was led away amid the murmurs of an interested and disappointed multitude, and after languishing in extreme pain for two days, paid the forfeit of her blindness and folly.

London Paper.

Resurrection Men.—On Sunday morning, the 20th ultimo, about four o'clock, a party of resurrection men scaled the walls of St. Martin's burying ground, situated in the fields at the back of Camden-town, for the purpose, as it is supposed, of stealing the body of a grenadier, near seven feet high, who died in the poor house of that parish, and had been buried in the above-mentioned place of interment. The sexton, to guard the ground, had, more ingeniously than lawfully put together a number of gun-barrels, so as to form them into a magazine, that they might all be discharged together. After burying the body of a pauper he made it the practice to direct the muzzle of this formidable engine towards the mound of earth which was the general receptacle for the dead parochial poor, and having a string fixed to the trigger, he fastened the other end of it round a large piece of wood, which he buried in the grave about a foot below the surface of the ground, so that if any one should attempt to dig, they must necessarily remove the above piece of wood, the string would pull the trigger, and a volley of bullets would immediately sweep that quarter of the burying-ground. On the morning in question, about half-past four, he heard a tremenduous report, and concluded it was this new piece of ordinance: he went out, as soon as possible and on arriving at the guarded spot, he found some spades, shovels, pick-axes, and other resurrection paraphernalia. Among other things he found a man's hat, through one side of which a bullet had evidently passed; but from there being no mark on the other side of it; it is concluded that the bullet was lodged in the head of the owner and killed him, and that he had been carried off by his associates.—London Times.

Animal Remains.—It appears that a large mass of the bones of that extraordinary, but now extinct animal which has received the name of the mammoth, as well as of other quadrupeds, has been discovered at Cronstadt, in Wirtemburg. When the late king of Wirtemburg was informed that the teeth of the mammoth and elephant found at Cronstadt, merited the attention of naturalists, he gave orders for the most accurate researches. They at first found a great quantity of the teeth of mammoths, elephants, rhinoceroses, horses and stags, and on the second day they discovered a great mass of these teeth, which were justly an object of general astonishment. Thirteen were twisted together like enormous serpents, at the depth of near seven feet. The largest of these teeth, although it was but a fragment, was three feet in circumference, and eight feet in length. These bones have, by the king's order, been transported to the cabinet of natural history.—London pap.

The situation of this property on the Ohio River, five miles from the flourishing Town of Steubenville, and in the neighbourhood of several Merchant Mills, Iron Works, &c. renders it a desirable object to a person who would wish to farm extensively, as he would probably at all times find a good market at his door for the produce of his farm. INTERESTING NARRATIVE.

Extract of a letter from Highwassie.

"With regard to the rifles presented by president of the United States, as a re- rd for the extraordinary enterprize of ree young Cherokee warriors, I must ve you a short history.

"The Creeks were fortified on a point land formed by a bend of the Tallapoo- river, at a place which, from its shape, tained the name of Horse Shoe. The iver was deemed a sufficient security, on count of its depth, and that part of the oint adjoining the country was strongly rtified by the Creeks, quite across the sthmus, with large square timber, well ut together, and raised high. General ackson approached the works with such rtillery as he had; the Cherokee warriors having been posted on the opposite side of the river, to prevent any reinforcements from coming to the Creeks. He then commenced a cannonade on the works, while the Cherokees and Creeks fought across the river with small arms. The general found that his artillery was too light to make any effectual impression on the works—the Cherokee warriors, at the same time, found that their fire across the river promised nothing—they grew impatient—and three young Cherokees plunged into the river, while the battle was raging, and swam towards that point of the Horse shoe where the creeks had secured their water craft. As these three brave Cherokees approached the shore, they were fired at by the Creeks, and one was wounded—two reached the shore unhurt; each of these seized a canoe and recrossed the river; the two canoes were then filled with other Cherokees, who crossed over and seized a number of canoes, and returned. By these means, in a short time, nearly all the Cherokees landed themselves on the Horse Shoe, attacked the Creeks there, drove them and burned their cabins. Gen. Jackson, finding that the Creeks were attacked in their rear, on their own fortified ground, made an assault on the works by escalade, and carried them with the loss of some valuable officers and men; but, notwithstanding the works were carried, the Creeks fought obstinately till night when a few escaped. It was estimated that about seven hundred Creeks fell in the action.—The Cherokee warriors suffered considerably, as well as the American troops. A regular regiment commanded by Col. Williams, lost a number of men in carrying the works. Col. Williams assured me, that had it not been for the enterprize of the Cherokees in crossing the river, as stated, nearly his whole regiment would have been cut to pieces." Nat. Int.

Capt. AUSTIN, of the Fawn, who arrived on the 8th inst. at Boston, from Calcutta: on the 9th Feb. spoke an English ship from the Cape of Good Hope, bound Eastward, which reported, that one of Buonaparte's Generals had escaped from St Helena, had been arrested and sent to the Cape of Good Hope, where he was in custody.

[This report probably alludes to the fact already known, that of the Polish Colonel Piontowski, who joined Napoleon at St. Helena, and who for some suspicious conduct had been sent from that island to the Cape by the British Governor.]

From the Augusta Herald.

STATE OF THE MARKET.

Industry still a most valuable commodity, but frequently suspended by the encouragement given to private banking.

Specie Change occasionally emerging from darkness to light—but reluring again from public observation, to avoid associating with that tattered and motley group which is too often considered as its representative.

Punctuality growing scarce, in consequence of that flood of promises, with which the commercial soil has been overflowed.

Sales brisk, when extensive credit is given, and "no questions asked."

Provisions in Market advancing step by step with a rapidity which rather outruns the convenience of purchasers.

Appetites for good living on the rise, as ability for gratifying them seems to decline.

Generosity somewhat scarce—a supply of the article would meet a favourable market.

Zeal active and fervent; in promoting the views of its possessor.

Death of PETION.—A gentleman who came passenger in the ship Cyrus, arrived at Boston on the 11th inst. states, that it was currently reported and generally believed in Kingston, that PETION, President of Hayti, had met his death—and that he was poisoned. The officers of the Venezulian privateer who boarded the Cyrus, also informed another passenger of this fact.

Under the Paris date of the third Feb. it is stated, that "M. Corvetto asked Mr. Gallatin, what device he would adopt in America, in case of a deficit of 300 millions, and a total absence of credit; the latter minister replied, "my first step would be, to retrench 150 millions in the expenditure, and the next day I would have offers of credit to twice that amount."

The object of this Lottery is to aid in the improvement of the Internal Navigation of the State of Pennsylvania, and was authorised by the Legislature expressly for that purpose. HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES, from the first settlement as English Colonies, in 1607, to the year 1808, or the thirty third year of their Sovereignty and Independence,

By DAVID RAMSAY, M. D.

Continued to the Treaty of Ghent, by SAMUEL STANHOPE SMITH, D. D. L. L. D. and other literary gentlemen. In 3 vols. 8 vo.

Extract from the Analectic Magazine for Jan. 1817.

"We have not transcribed this title page with a view to give at present, a detail of what the volume contains Every body is acquainted with the unfortunate event which terminated at once the life and the historical career of Dr. Ramsay: and our design in this notice is merely to contribute our mite towards making it as generally known, that his history of the United States is now in the course of publication, and forms almost the only legacy that was left by the author to a family of no less than eight children

The present volume (first) is introduced with a Biography, (extracted from our Journal) and its other contents are the civil history of the United States, while they were yet Colonies. We hope there is no necessity of appealing to the patriotism of our countrymen, in behalf of the only systematic history which has ever been written of the American Republic. We would not be understood to recommend any book solely on this account: but the powers of Dr. Ramsay are sufficiently known, and we think the circumstances under which his history is published, should form a part of the motives for encouraging the work."
